FOREWORD

This bibliography includes materials which the Technical Assistance Program/Office of School Integration Services has found useful in rendering technical assistance to various school divisions. The producers are included so that local purchase can be facilitated if people agree that the materials are useful in implementing their own multiethnic, multicultural curriculum programs.

Ours is primarily a total program service oriented center rather than the typical lending library. Please feel free to call our office for further information about working with our materials in your school.

Black Political Power

Doubleday Multimedia

Blacks need greater representation at every level of government, yet in a country where Blacks represent only 10% of the population, how can more Blacks attain political office? What will be the effect on the nation as a whole? Is it possible for Blacks to achieve their goals within the system? This series goes beyond mere biography to give insight into the Black community, to motivate students and to humanize the study of American institutions and the elective process. It gives historical perspective from reconstruction days to the present, with political scientists, civil rights leaders and politicians explaining their own interpretation of recent events.

THE COLEMAN REPORT: EQUALITY OF EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

Anti-Defamation League

The Coleman Report, prepared for the U. S. Office of Education and released in 1966, revised conceptions of ways to achieve quality education for disadvantaged children. Dr. James Coleman's findings indicate that quality education is not only a matter of new schools with the latest equipment. Rather, it rests on a new concept of integration - integration along economic class lines. Topics discussed include the value of compensatory education, the role of the school in eliminating discrimination, the effect of class integration on the advantaged child, and ways of initiating changes in the public school called for by the Coleman Report.

TAPE CASSETTES

Carl Rogers on Tape

Instructional Dynamics, Inc.

Five audio tape lectures by the renowned psychologist, author and educator. An opportunity to hear this seminal thinker present his reactions to many of mankind's most basic concerns. In this series of 26 cassettes, divided into 3 separate series, Dr. Carl Rogers discusses all facets of Encounter Groups.

In Series I, consisting of 10 cassettes, Dr. Rogers introduces the basic processes, describes different kinds of groups, talks about how to be a facilitator (and how not to be!), and indicates what to expect in the way of results.

In Series II, consisting of 10 cassettes, Dr. Rogers continues with a discussion of current research and future plans, then indicates successful techniques for training of facilitators, and concludes with a two-part lecture of Black/White Encounter Groups.

In Series III, consisting of 6 cassettes, Dr. Rogers covers such topics as psychodrama, family meeting and encounter groups, use of the encounter approach in schools, the relevance of encounter techniques to drug problems, and an over-all summary of the program.

Encountertapes for Black/White Groups

Instructional Dynamics, Inc.

Groups of people that are racially mixed often have considerable difficulty in establishing genuine relationships and honest communication with one another. This is an audio tape program for a group of eight to twelve people seeking to experience the meaning of racial differences more directly and understand them more fully.

Encountertapes for Personal Growth Groups

Instructional Dynamics, Inc.

Personal Growth Groups is a program which provides a suitable setting for a person to participate directly in a broad set of experiences which can contribute to his or her own individual growth. It is a program of ten sessions for groups of six to twelve people. An audio tape guides and structures the personal interactions and events in each session as the members go through the various stages typical in the life of such a group.
